Caglia Environmental Charity Golf Classic a Success

Fresno – Caglia Environmental’s May Charity Golf Classic provided a significant contribution to Fresno Metro Ministry’s Food to Share program.

“We’re delighted with the generosity of our sponsors and golfers at our Charity Golf Classic,” said Rich Caglia, head of Corporate Development for Caglia Environmental and the Caglia family’s spokesman. “Everyone had a great time on the course and the funds raised by our golfers and sponsors will help Food to Share achieve its goal of reducing food insecurity in the Central Valley.”

Food to Share is a community based partnership of local organizations that work together to reduce food insecurity in Fresno County by making high quality food available to underserved areas. Additionally, by redirecting nutritious food away from landfills and into the hands of needy families, Food to Share is contributing to better air quality through the reduction of greenhouse gases that are a natural byproduct of food disposal in landfills.

“We’re thankful to all of our Caglia Golf Classic participants,” said Caglia.

Caglia Environmental is committed to preserving and protecting the environment by providing advanced solid waste and recycling services to communities in the Central Valley.
