

Caglia Environmental: Your School's Recycling and Sustainability Partner for 80+ Years

Caglia Environmental Companies take the lead in eco-friendly education in the Valley.

Sustainability: We've all heard the word, but what does it mean? Sustainability is the buzzword in environmental conservation and it is based on the principle that good ecological health results from all of us taking care of our planet now, and for generations to come. At Industrial Waste & Salvage and Redrock Environmental Group, Caglia Environmental Companies, we believe a healthy San Joaquin Valley results from the responsible stewardship of our Valley's natural environment, beginning with our most valuable resource: our children.

Children spend seven-plus hours in class each school day from the ages of 5 to 18, with Industrial Waste & Salvage and Redrock Environmental Group often there, presenting them with educational workshops and materials designed to mesh seamlessly with their grade-appropriate science curriculum. Caglia Environmental Companies partner with school teachers, administrators and staff to make your child's school a leader in diverting as much waste as possible away from landfills and into recycling, where those used products can be reclaimed and transformed into new commodities, for use in consumer markets all over the world, including our Valley. Every day that children toss used paper, plastic bottles and glass into an Industrial Waste & Salvage or Redrock Environmental Group recycling bin instead of the trash, they are participating in a sustainability effort that will lead to a cleaner, healthier Valley.

The Caglia Environmental Companies' sustainability mission stems from the roots of our founder, Frank Caglia, who came with his family from Italy as a young boy, settling in Fresno in the early 1920s. Beginning in 1941, many years before recycling was a recognized principle, Frank was "salvaging," reclaiming from his Orange Avenue Landfill anything that could be reused. From those early days, Industrial Waste & Salvage, the Redrock Environmental Group and the Caglia family have made it a primary goal of their companies to educate the Valley's children, through our collaboration with local schools and educators, to recycle and thus preserve our San Joaquin Valley's land, air and water. Sustainability isn't just a buzzword at the Caglia Environmental Companies, it is a central philosophy in the daily operations of our businesses, and in our efforts to educate our Valley's most precious resource: its children.

Our educational presentation is an engaging and enlightening half-hour program designed and customized to suit the needs of each audience and age group served by the Caglia Environmental Companies. Young people will learn about innovative and sustainable recycling methods and projects. Adults in the business and professional world will benefit from Caglia Environmental staff and management who are knowledgeable and experienced at helping multi-family properties, large businesses, and governmental organizations meet compliance requirements of AB 341, the State of California's Mandatory Commercial Recycling law. Contact us for a recycling audit and workshop for your school, business or community organization. Industrial Waste & Salvage, Redrock Environmental Group and all the Caglia Environmental Companies are your local leaders in recycling, sustainability practices and education in Central California.
